With the assistance of the Australia Council and the Community Employment Programme, the South Australian Ministry of Technology and the Experimental Art Foundation are jointly sponsoring a pilot project to collect information on artists using new technologies. The aim of this research is to produce a computerized data base containing information on the following:

- The extent to which new technologies and techniques are being explored by artists, both in Australia and overseas.
- The involvement of government and private organisations in art and technology
- Internationally established art and technology centres and artists.
- An extensive bibliography of published information in these areas.

This information will be made available for reference and research purposes and will provide the basis for the continuation of the national Art and Technology Centre.

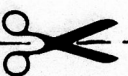

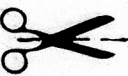

At this stage of the project we are focusing on artists who are currently working in the following areas:

- computer graphics
- computer systems
- holography
- lasers
- new photographic processes
- robotics
- telecommunications
- other new technologies

If you wish to be included in this international survey please send us your name and address on the attached slip.

Thank you for your interest and assistance.
